CLEVELAND'S LOGIC.

Like Selling Clothing at Less Than Cost, the Money is Made by Selling a Great Many of Them.

Cincinnati Enquirer, (Dem.) December 25th.—10 his annual message the President communicated to Congress his views as to what objects should be almost at in Tariff legislation, and, at the same time, informed them that a measure had been prepared by the appropriate Congressional committee embodying Tariff reform of the lines suggested by him. Then, as if to relieve Congress from any analys lest that committee should fall in its duty, he said this measure would be promptly submitted for legislative action. Thanks to the vigilance of the President, his confinite has made the President, and the confinite has made the report which accompanies It, but rather to cell attention to what it ought to be, if it really dose embody the President's view of Tariff reform. The possibility of the landing of British forces is far nore serious. It is not the custom of the British government to send its armed forces asbore custom of that nation to raise its flag merely to haul it down.

It is said that station to raise its flag merely to haul it down.

It is asid that stir George Pullett in 1856 raised the flag of Great British over the Ilawaiian islands, and that compileations at that time caused the lowering of the flag and the disavowai of British protectorate. The conditions then, however, were vasity different than, however, were vasity different of the conditions than the protectorate over the Hawaiian islands would be in accord with a recent policy of that country in seiling islands in the Pacific, and would be an important point in the policy of Great Britais to grevent the exclusive control of the Nicaryana cannot by the United the trade with Asia, for which Great Britais to greve the control of the Nicaryana cannot be the United the trade with Asia, for which Great Britain hopes to develop the Canadian Pacific railroad and the subbidized steamship lines between Victoria, B. The question that most perplexed the many minds which had attempted to give a satisfactory explanation of the affair was, where was the son Hufus. The break of day threw new light on the statution. In the basement of the cows, was found the rosate body of the son, the head, arms and legs burned off, but enough left to make it absolutely certain that it was his body. This was not all that was found. An empty shift bucket, somewhat mashed, was near his body. His watch was stopped at 6:55, and finding of these articles convince all that the family had been murdered, but a more thorough search where the body was found, brought to light a pistol, which was young Sauer's property. This added to the fact that young Sauer had been very fond of late of the trashy half-dime novels, at one purchase last week, turned the burden of the deed upon him, and it is now generally believed he was the nature of the cheap literature, and by his being censured by his Christian parents for some wrongful act.

of the 'resident.

The 'grayestion of work in mills and offices,' and 'the distress in the homes of our workingmeu' have created an an larming condition in the country—a condition which calls for the exercise of the highest sistesmanship in all legislation affecting our industries. The Democratle party, until now, with only temporary deviations, has seemed willing, while imposing duties on imports, to recognize the difference between European and American wages, and to give the American ishorium man at least an equal chance. The President recommends a new departure. If thinks the true histories of our workingmen is to submit to such a cut of their wages as will enable the manufactured articles to European markets, there- to compete with articles mugiactured by European prices. If the discovery of thing great dayantage of "in fower rate of wages, is really such a boson to our workingway as the President professor. win great advantage of "a lower rate of wages," is really such a hoon to our workin-vay, as the President professes to believe, the might to assemble every-where throughout the country and in-dores his viows. The press of the country should copy the two paragraphs from the message, above quoted, so that the lubr-ing class may see that at last they have a Moose.
